QUANTUM LOGIC IN MEDICINE

(According to Prof. Dr. med. Walter Köster)

Most people in western society have a need for more energy to meet the challenges of every day life.

Quantum logical medicine is about energy flow, which each person can tap into in his own individual way to reach his God-given potential.

This is done while maintaining harmony with himself.

Harmony can only be maintained when God-given energy is allowed to flow.

This affects all aspects of health and wellbeing.

1899 – Max Plank found out that the spreading of energy happens not fluently but separated in special portions, which contain the special quantity (QUANTUM) of this energy. He calls them QUANTA. The flow of energy in the measurable reality is subdivided into quanta, this means it's spreading gradually with inexplicable dividing lines.

200 years ago, the German physician Samuel Hahnemann discovered a unique method of healing. When you turn your attention to the dividing lines in the flow of function of the patient, you can see them in the special, marked symptoms and you'll get an amazing success. These special symptoms reveal the cracks of life. Here you can see one's personality with all its power and weakness (e.g. very generous on the one hand and very stingy on the other hand).

The laws of this therapy are contrary to common western logic! They obey another kind of logic – the QUANTUM LOGIC!

The world of the quantum is quite unique, it follows its own logic and it has little in common with the classical mechanics based on Aristotle.

It's an absolutely invisible world, but on their effects we can study its procedure.

The same can be said about homeopathy.

QUANTUM THEORY is a PHYSICS OF TOTALITY.

HOMEOPATHY is a MEDICINE OF TOTALITY.

Quantum logical medicine is all about finding root causes and releasing natural energy flow.

Classical medicine uses chemical remedies to suppress or make symptoms disappear.

It is not able to deal with the cause. Therefore it is not able to regulate the flow of energy.

There is no other medicine that effectively deals with managing energy flow, which all of us need to maintain our health and wellbeing.

PROCEDURE

At present, about 2.000 different substances are known in Homeopathy and many of them have been researched in great detail. For the most part they derive from nature; from plants, minerals or animals.

A sick person needs just one particular of these substances (in form of a homeopathic remedy) to be healed. Only the appropriate remedy can provide the "control centre" of the person with the specific information that is necessary to stimulate the stagnating energy flow. It is absolutely fascinating to see how a free flow of energy can provide the organism with enough power to achieve complete healing!

To identify this unique remedy, a lot of preparatory work is required both from the patient and the therapist.

1 The first step is to ascertain and understand the "symptom picture" and the personal peculiarities of each patient. This is done in a very detailed consultation (anamnesis). In case of an acute illness, the anamnesis is restricted to questions about time and location of the complaints, but in case of a chronic or often repeated disease it is about the whole person, including physical, psychological, emotional and hereditary information.

2 The second step is to look for a remedy that has caused those symptoms in the drug study that correspond best with the symptoms present in the patient and with his personality (homeopathic and quantum-logic identification of the remedy). This demands very much time, concentration and special knowledge about the remedies, their effects and their peculiarities. The key to healing often lies in the understanding of the whole patient (his personality).

3 The third step is to prescribe one specific remedy in an appropriate potency (concentration). The remedy will transmit a specific informative impulse to the regulative centres of the organism. This impulse will activate the flow of life, i.e. initiate the healing process.

4 The fourth step is to observe: to see what's now happening in body, mind and life of the patient, to make out if and in which way a reaction to the prescribed remedy has taken place. A following analysis determines the further proceeding: Does the organism need another dose of the same remedy in order to intensify the healing process or does it need a different remedy now?

PREPARATION OF HOMEOPATHIC SUBSTANCES

Nearly all homeopathic remedies derive from plants, minerals or animals. Some well known toxic substances like e. g. snake poison, yellow sulphur, as well as various narcotics like opium, cannabis indica etc. are also playing an important role. Naturally one can't help thinking that it is irresponsible to give such a potentially dangerous substance to an already sick person. But all substances used in Homeopathy are only given in potentized form. This means that an original substance like e. g. opium is diluted to one tenth (D-potency) or to one hundredth (C-potency) with a neutral substance like e. g. 50% alcohol or lactose and at the same time each dilution is energetically agitated by vigorous shaking (drops) or by grinding (globules). This process is as often repeated as it takes to get the desired potency.

The prescribed remedies usually start at a potency of C 200, followed by C 1.000; C 10.000; etc. as required during the course of the healing process. With this enormous potentation ("dilution") there is no possibility that even one single molecule of the original substance is left in the globules or drops. This is absolutely true.

Therefore, Classical Medicine often regards Homeopathy as hocus-pocus, because its principles are based on the clearly materialistic logic of Aristotle and on Newton's view of physics.

But modern physics as well as modern mathematics, which work on Quantum theory and Quantum logic, make Homeopathy explicable.

Quantum theory has been known since 1899 (Max Plank) meanwhile belongs to the best proven theories in modern physics. You need this "Quantum logic" way of looking at a human being, his existence and at the way Homeopathy works in order to be successful.

As you see Quantum Logic as a logic of wholeness, you can see Homeopathy as a medicine of wholeness.

If a sick person gets the appropriate remedy, healing takes place following its own laws, no matter if the patient believes in Homeopathy or not.

This can be easily observed.

Homeopathic medicine demands good cooperation between the therapist and the patient.

It is not the kind of therapy where the patient gets the diagnosis together with some pills and is immediately released as “healed” as we often experience in the Classical Medicine. Careful self-observation, support of the doctor and willingness to give up harmful influences as well as patience and understanding during the critical phases of the healing process are necessary.

But surely this won't be all too difficult for someone who really wants to get healthy.

It is worthwhile after all!
